Johnstone's Trade products have been used to help complete a variety of external timber and brickwork refurbishments at a Church in Edinburgh, first built in 1932.

The Decorator, Garry Olver Painters, visited the local Edinburgh Johnstone's Decorating Centre, looking for technical advice and product information. There was a requirement for a long-lasting product that could be used on external woodwork, ensuring the church was kept looking its very best for the local community for many years to come.

GORI 99 was chosen to offer water based wood protection for outdoor use. In addition, Johnstone's Trade Smooth Masonry was selected to ensure the brick and blockwork would also remain in fantastic condition. Johnstone's Trade's Smooth Metal Paint was used for the downpipes and gutters, providing the perfect total coatings solution for this project.
